

Uzi Benziman,

HAARETZ English Edition

Israel's Leading Daily Newspaper; Established 1919

ty Adviser Condoleezza Rice.

According to an early draft of the plan published in Ma'ariv yesterday, Eiland is proposing that Israel remain in three set tlements in the northern Gaza

Strip and in a widened Philadelphia Road corridor on the bor der between Gaza and Egypt

Sharon, however, is currently leaning toward a complete evacuation of the Strip-whereas Mofaz told his American hosts yesterday that Israel would withdraw from all the Gaza settlements, but not from the Philadelphia Road area, as control of this region is vital to Eiland's document, which was submitted to Sharon in late

January, also recommends a gradual withdrawal from the West Bank: four settlements in the northern West Bank would be evacuated at the time of the prevent arms smuggling.

world.

Friday, March 12, 2004

24 HOURS A DAY EVERY DAY www.haaretz.com

Adar 19, 5764. Vol 86, No 25775

Sharon may restrict his pullout plan to Gaza only

By Aluf Benn and Nathan Guttman Haaretz Correspondents

Prime Minister Ariel Sharon is considering restricting his disengagement plan to Gaza only, without a concomitant withdrawal from the West Bank, in light of the growing opposition to the plan among Likud ministers.

Sharon will explore this possibility over the next few days, as well as the alternative of a small, purely symbolic withdrawal from the West Bank. However, both the United Mofaz told his interlocutors States and Egypt have said they that American support for the will not support the plan unless plan is essential, because that it includes a significant withwill help Sharon to sell it to the drawal from the West Bank. Israeli public, as well as to the Palestinians and the rest of the Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for the Middle East David Satterfield reiterated this position in Washington yesterday. America, he said, has not yet formulated a position regarding the disengagement plan, and will do so only after receiving more answers from Israel. However, he added, one of the biggest questions is the scope of the planned withdrawal in the West Bank, which the U.S. views as a necessary complement to the Gaza pullout.

Meanwhile, the Palestinians are demanding that following the disengagement, Israel allow Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat to travel freely between Ramallah and Gaza, arguing that this is necessary for the PA security forces to assume control over Gaza once Israel leaves. Israel, however, rejects this demand.

withdrawal from Gaza, fol-Sharon met yesterday in Jerusalem with three Amerilowed by another 15 to 20 West can envoys who came to hear Bank settlements later on. dditional details of the disengagement plan and to discuss what the U.S. might give Israel in exchange for the withdraw- sort, but that its scope has not al. The three - Steve Hadley yet been determined.

The Spanish flag being lowered to half mast at the embassy in Tel Aviv yesterday. PM Sharon and FM Shalom sent their condolences.

No casualties so far, say capital's Jews

By Amiram Barkat and Yoav Stern Haaretz Correspondents

Madrid's Jewish community was unaware last night that any of its 14,000-strong members had been injured or killed in yesterday's terror attacks in the city. Spain is home to around 35,000 Jews, most of whom live in Madrid and Barcelona.

There have been relatively few anti-Semitic incidents in Spain in recent years; however, comparative surveys conducted in Europe indicate that as a nation, Spaniards hold the most anti-Semitic views in all of Western Europe. A survey conducted in 2002 by the Anti-Defamation League, for example, revealed that 63 percent of Spaniards believed Jews wield too much power in global economics and 72 percent believed Spanish Jews' loyalty to Israel superseded their loyalty to Spain.

son for this view is the small size of the community. "They [the Spaniards] simply aren't familiar with Jews and therefore they think this way," he said

Massis adds that criticism of Israel in the media and among the Spanish public is particularly harsh. "There is a lot of solidarity here with the Palestinians, as well as many Muslim immigrants," he not-

The Foreign Ministry was preparing yesterday to receive information about Israelis who may have been injured or killed in the Madrid attacks, but no such information reached the ministry's situations room.

The reports on the bombings caught Israel's diplomats in Spain either at home or on their way to the embassy. "Immediately on hearing of the terror attack, we split up into said embassy teams." spokesman Jacky Eldan. "The most important things was to ensure that none of the Israelis in the city had been hurt."

Uriel Massis, one of the heads of the Madrid's Jewish community, believes the rea-

Madrid is not the end of terrorism's road

acts by Al-Qaida, Hamas, Islamic Jihad and their ilk: a terror attack against innocent civilians in the name of an ideology or political demand.

The modus operandi was also similar: setting off a bomb in a crowded place, or preferably several such places at once, and then afterward also trying to hit the rescue forces. ror organizations. The same

The Spanish say the thing has happened in Iraq Basque underground, ETA, recently: Opposition groups are making every effort to has in the past refrained hit crowds of civilians, in orfrom mass terror attacks against civilians, preferring der to terrorize and to prove to target government offithat the government cannot cials and Spanish security defend its citizens.

personnel. But it is possible that ETA has changed its tensively against Israel even strategy, and has now decidbefore the September 11, ed to imitate the Islamic ter-2001 terror attack in the

Al-Qaida's Spanish vendetta

By Zvi Bar'el "The war against Iraq will not eradicate day from Jordan to Spain. Garzon, unlike Prime Minister Jose the threat of terror but, perversely, it may Maria Aznar, objected to Spain's participa-That was the comment, on the eve of the tion in the war on Iraq, and publicly declared he had found no evidence that Saddam Hussein was in contact with Al-Qaida. Garzon's prophesy about heightened terror may have come true yesterday, if it indeed turns out that AI-Qaida was behind the series of attacks on Madrid trains.

Al-Qaida has three scores to settle with Spain: Aznar allowed Spain to become the European headquarters that enabled President George Bush and British Prime Minister Tony Blair to present the war on Iraq

This method was used ex-

See MADRID, Page A3

activists suspected of contacts with AI-Qaida. The last of them was extradited yester-as a coalition effort, and not a U.S.-U.K. duet; Spain has 1,300 soldiers stationed in

Analysis / Terror in Madrid Did ETA stray from bolster it.

its usual strategy?

By Adar Primor

During the run-up to the 1996 Spanish parliamentary elections, Jose Maria Aznar survived an assassination attempt by Basque terrorists, emerging virtually unscathed. Some people say the equanimity with which he treated the affair - reports say he simply brushed the dirt off his suit and continued walking - is what made him such a popular figure among Spanish voters, and eventually led to an election victory over his long-serving predecessor, Philippe Gonzales. Since then, Aznar has become a byword for uncompromising war against terror

In an interview with Haaretz in June 2003, Aznar made it clear that he does not differentiate between the local terror of the Basque separatist movement ETA, and the global, fundamentalist terror of AI-Qaida. As far as he is concerned, ETA, AI-Qaida, Hamas and Hezbollah are the same, since "differentiating between them merely strengthens the terrorists. One cannot make distinctions based on the source of the terror - in the end, all terror has fundamentalism at its root."

Aznar, however, surprised many in that interview, by saying that he objected to Israel's policy of "targeted killings."

U.S.-led invasion of Iraq, of Spanish left-"As someone who has a lot of experience fighting terror, ranov ground or of another terrorist organization, such as Al-Qaida - or perhaps even a collaborative effort - it is clear that the massacre at the train station in Spain's capital was modeled after

By Ze'ev Schiff Whether yesterday's termassive ror attack in Madrid was the work of the Basque under-

Mofaz, in Washington, said merely that Israel is planning a myself to say that the struggle must obey international law," he said. Aznar rejected Ariel Sharon's method of fighting terror. West Bank withdrawal of some "Only international cooperation, only a concerted effort on the See ETA, Page A3 winger Bailhazar Garzon, one of the mos tireless campaigners against Al-Qaida. The crusading judge, who currently serves as Spain's prosecutor general, is now running an investigation into some 40

Trad at present; and Spain is in the process of putting a large group of suspected Al-Qaida activists on trial.

For the terror organization, this is See AL-QAIDA, Page A3

Sharon aims to get 1 million Jews to move to Israel in next few years

By Amiram Barkat

Last week, Prime Minister Ariel Sharon took a break from affairs of state to hold a meetinginhisofficeonasubject that has preoccupied him for some time: He wanted to know how Israel can get a million Jews to immigrate here over the next several years

The meeting did not produce an answer, but it was agreed that practical plans for bringing a million Jews here would be prepared for a follow-up session in June. Sharon, his associates said, left the meeting believing this goal was attainable. The meeting was attended by ministers and representatives of agencies involved with immigration. Participants included Finance Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, Absorption Minister Tzipi Livni and the heads of the Jewish Agency, Nativ and the National Security people immigrated in 2003, the lowest number since 1989. And Council. Also present was Didi Arazi, one of the founders of the only 2,650 people have arrived computer company Nice. so far this year, a decline of Arazi, who has since left highabout 30 percent compared to tech to devote his time to public the same period last year. Offiaffairs, recently agreed to head cials active in Russia and a Jewish Agency task force on Ukraine say the improved ecoencouraging immigration nomic situation there has from North America. stemmed the tide of immigra-Jewish Agency officials told tion, and the number of people the meeting that under the leaving Israel for those counmost optimistic scenario, imtries now exceeds the number migration could be increased immigrating from them. In Arby 2010 to 70,000 people a year, gentina, economic improvement has also dried up the flow > Against this background, talk of bringing a million immigrants appears somewhat detached from reality. But Sharon, his associates said, thinks otherwise. "The assumption is that this is possible," said one associate who attended the meeting. "But it would require a drastic change including 20,000 from the former Soviet Union, 20,000 from of immigrants. France and 15,000 from North America. Overall, they said, the target of a million immigrants would require some 400,000 from North America and another 200,000 from the former in policies to encourage immigration."

One necessary change would be for the relevant agencies to shift their focus from distressed countries to the prosperous West - what the Jewish Agency defines as "immigration by choice." The problem is that there is no precedent in Zionist history for mass immigration of this sort.

"The dominant factor in mass immigration was distress," said Prof. Sergio Della Pergola of Hebrew University. Nevertheless, he said, it is possible to observe signs of distress even in the wealthy West - with France being the prime example

Dr. Erik Cohen of Bar-Han University's school of education, who recently conducted a study of French Jews, concurred, saying that interest in See JEWS, Page A3

The Israel Electric Corporation has begun generating electricity using natural gas as well

For over 80 years the Israel Electric Corporation has been leading the Israeli electric sector forward. We have recently started to generate electricity using natural gas in the Eshkol power plants site in Ashdod - for the environment and for us all.

חברת החשמל Israel Electric

Soviet bloc. In the meantime, however, immigration to Israel has been declining steadily. Only 24,434

Will others follow the rabbi's lead?

Two weeks ago, Rabbi Stanley David abandoned his wealthy Reform congregation in Atlanta, Georgia and moved to Israel with his wife, Resa.

"Last June, we thought about moving to live near our children in Santa Monica, California, when we suddenly understood that we were looking in the wrong place, and the house we wanted was, in fact, in Jerusalem," he related.

Davis, 67, is also president of ARZA, the Reform Movement's Zionist organ. "At the last meeting of the Jewish Agency's board of trustees, everyone got up and applauded me," he said. "And I suddenly understood how surrealist it is that the World Zionist Organization views immigration to Israel as such an exceptional event."

While Davis hopes that other American Jews will follow his lead, he thinks the chances of mass immigration from America are low. "Over the long term, it might be possible to have an influence via education and activities to strengthen [Jewish] identity, but in the short term, it would be very difficult," he said. (Å.B.)